Mike Babcock's story

Mike Babcock is one of the most highly regarded and successful coaches in the international sport of hockey. He currently serves as head coach of the Columbus Blue Jackets of the National Hockey League. He previously spent 17 seasons as head coach of the Anaheim Mighty Ducks, Detroit Red Wings, and Toronto Maple Leafs. During those 17 years, he made the playoffs 14 times, the Stanley Cup Finals 3 times, and won the Stanley Cup in 2008 with the Red Wings. He is currently 11th in all-time wins for an NHL head coach. On top of that, he is the second-fastest head coach in NHL history to reach 500 career wins.

He is the only Triple Gold Club coach in hockey history (Stanley Cup, IIHF World Championship, and Olympic gold). Additionally, Babcock is the only coach to win 6, or even 5, distinct national or international titles. At the Sochi Olympics, Babcock became the 2nd head coach in history to lead one country to a gold medal victory in consecutive Olympic appearances.

Babcock's teams generally focus on skills and puck possession. He is also one of the game's most respected coaches by way of line combinations, match-ups and overall game strategy. Babcock's coaching experience has given him plenty of insight on the ideas of vision, teamwork, destiny, and effort. He often speaks about how he instills his own virtues into the minds of his players, including discipline, heart, strength of will, and sportsmanship, and how those virtues should be used by everyone. His natural leadership and in-depth knowledge have made him one of the most credible and inspirational coaches of all time.
