

Puzzle Hunt

by David Kwong

Step into a world of mystery, magic, and mental gymnastics with David Kwong’s Puzzle Hunt—a one-of-a-kind adventure designed to unite your team through creative thinking and problem-solving. Trusted by top companies like Google, Amazon, and Morgan Stanley, this immersive experience blends David’s world-class talents as a magician and New York Times puzzle master into an unforgettable experience that strengthens bonds and sharpens minds.

What to Expect

The Puzzle Hunt is a highly interactive, collaborative event where participants are divided into small, diverse groups and given a series of interconnected puzzles to solve. "The puzzles are fun and not too hard!" says David. "They simply require you to think outside the box and look at things from a different perspective." His challenges range from visually immersive to audio-based listening puzzles, from crosswords to logic problems. No prior trivia expertise is required. In fact, internet access and smartphones are encouraged, making the event inclusive and stress-free.

Each puzzle is designed not to stump, but to spark insight and "aha!" moments. Participants must combine their individual strengths, communicate effectively, and employ lateral thinking. The ultimate goal? Solve the final meta-puzzle that brings all the earlier clues together into one elegant, satisfying solution.

Theme

David brings his expertise as a New York Times crossword constructor and Hollywood producer to the puzzle writing process. He designs bespoke Puzzle Hunts that are tailored to your company or event. With each Puzzle Hunt, David's goal is to create an experience that encourages lateral thinking and cross-company interaction. Participants leave the hunt not only feeling smarter—but more connected to their colleagues.

As Google put it: "It's the perfect team event."

Timing

The Puzzle Hunt is best experienced with 60-90 minutes of solve time. Part of David’s bespoke puzzle creation is to calibrate the set of puzzles to fit the allotted time and preferred team size. Moreover, David will be on hand to introduce the Puzzle Hunt and give hints throughout, assuring that each team can complete the set of puzzles.
